It seeks to accurately grasp the basic spirit of the new version of the curriculum standards modified to help the majority of teachers understand and apply the curriculum standards to guide their teaching, and to shift its culture through a specific classroom teaching. In the preparation of the series, we have always maintained a belief: the efficiency of the teaching is of course important, but more important is the teaching of the soul. The so-called soul of teaching is in why we teach. We let students know, understand, master, will (operating skills) and what is for what. Only when all of our efforts are to effectively help students become happy life creators and builders of a better society, a free society, our education have a legitimate pursuit of value.
